Dear Ms. Megan McDonald,

I have just finished reading your book, Judy Moody Saves the World. Your book made me feel different about the many important parts of our environment. Your book has made me, as well as my great big, caring family realize how important it is to recycle. Before reading your book, I never just sat back and really thought about the items we throw away as garbage. I now find myself talking with others about how the recycling process really works.

I am trying to help the community by picking up the cans and bottles I see just lying around. Now my family recycles cans, bottles, plastics and newspapers. I am convincing my neighbors to do a lot more recycling. Before I read this book, I never even thought about recycling and why we do it. I now realize every little bit can help. I also learning how many things that can be recycled.

I thought that Stinks, "Batty for Band-aids," were very clever. Judy's smiley face ones was okay, they weren't the greatest. My name is Maddie Wagler and I am a student in Panorama, Middle/High School. Thanks for writing this book.

Sincerely,

Maddie Wagler
